This house is of frame and perhaps log covered with clapboard and tarpaper with a fake stone print. In three parts, the house faces south. The west section has 3 bays x 2 downstairs, 2 bays x 2 up; the middle section 3 bays by 2, with a lower A ~~roofline~~ roofline and lower ceilings than the west end. The third section, again two stories, has 2 bays by 2 under a lean-to roof. A one-story porch across the south side is partly enclosed. Windows throughout are 6 lights or 6. There is a large brick-topped chimney at the west end of the west section, and the east end of the middle section. Walls of the middle section are thick and are believed to be of log construction.

This farm house reflects the poverty of this area, poor soil has limited farming success. The house and out buildings are hard to date, and may have been built in an obsolete form years and decades after this "style" disappeared elsewhere.
